

Course information

Uro-oncology

- tumours of the urinary tract and male genitals
-

This course gives a broad and updated overview of the uro-oncological field within urology and oncology for the becoming specialist in urology and oncology.

Purpose and goal

The aim is to provide participants with basic knowledge about uro-oncological tumors, in order for them to be able to professionally reason, investigate, evaluate and handle patients with symptoms indicating as well as patients with already diagnosed malignancies of the urinary tract and male genital tract.

Target group

Residents in urology and oncology or especially interested general physicians.

Participants should be in the middle of their residency training towards becoming a specialist in urology or oncology.

Course outline

The course includes 4 full days and 1 half day with traditional lecture, activity learning sessions and activity examination.

Course content

The course content includes:

- Prostate cancer
- Bladder cancer
- Renal cancer
- Penile cancer
- Testicular cancer
- Differential diagnostics and clinical reasoning

Participating teachers

Course director Lars Henningsohn, Associate professor in urology, University lecturer

The teachers of the course are leading Swedish specialists within each of the uro-oncological diseases

Karolinska Institutet is one of the world's leading medical universities. Its mission is to contribute to the improvement of human health through research and education. Karolinska Institutet accounts for over 40 per cent of the medical academic research conducted in Sweden and offers the country's broadest range of education in medicine and health sciences. Since 1901 the Nobel Assembly at Karolinska Institutet has selected the Nobel laureates in Physiology or Medicine.

Karolinska Institutet Contract Education delivers competence development for municipalities, governments and businesses and works for development in healthcare and a healthier society.

Karolinska
Institutet